

A Special Plant Collection from Log House Plants

You can grow these beautiful and delicious Caribbean favorites in the Pacific Northwest! Explore the flavors of Haiti from your own garden- these remarkable varieties flourished in our extensive field testing trials in Oregon and Washington.

This special collection from Log House Plants is a fund-raiser for THE LAMBI FUND of HAITI, which has supported sustainable agriculture, development, and reforestation initiatives in Haiti, run by Haitians, since 1994.

Haitian cuisine evolved at a complex crossroads in history via Africa, the Americas, and Europe, and has had a major influence on American cooking. Many of the plants are familiar to most Americans as favorites of the South, and their origins can be traced to all corners of the globe.

Grown in Hairy Pots of organic coco fiber and natural latex binder, hand molded by a woman's collective in Sri Lanka. Plantable pot avoids the troubles of transplant shock!

AMARANTH

Red Callaloo

OKRA

Burgundy
Jambalaya
Jing Orange

PEANUTS

Schronce's Deep Black
Tennessee Red Valencia

PEPPER

Jamaican Yellow Scotch Bonnet

PUMPKIN

Giraumon Martinique

TOMATO

Plate de Haiti

SOUTHERN PEAS

Bohemian
Old Timer Purple Hull Speckled
Ozark Razorback
Red Ripper
Rouge et Noir
Six Week Purple Hull

ROSELLE

Jamaican
Thai Red

SORGHUM

Black Amber
Dale
Onavas Red
Rox Orange
Sugar Drip

www.loghouseplants.com